Distinguished past Achievers

The Duke of Edinburgh's Award program has been recognized as a powerful tool for personal development and giving back. Many prominent Canadians have been awarded the Silver and Gold Awards for their commitment and dedication to their community and the environment.

Silver Award
- Nayan Patel, 15-24 years old, started volunteering aged 15 and now has 1,000 hours of service.
- Sarah Johnson, 15-24 years old, has volunteered in a local hospital and continues to do so.

Gold Award
- Matthew White, 15-24 years old, has volunteered as a mentor and has completed a challenging expedition.
- Emily Thompson, 15-24 years old, has undertaken a community project focused on environmental conservation.

These awards recognize the contributions of young people in their communities, highlighting their leadership, personal development, and commitment to making a difference.
